The Azure.
"It's only in the depths of blue that man finds his deepest dreams fulfilled. Where every sorrow passes from view, and every heart-ache is hushed and soothed."

So would I wing my joyous flight To azure realms where rapture lies, But not to wander mystic helms, I'd be my heaven in your eyes!—Hutch E. Fassett in New Orleans Times-Picayune.

A Grimly Suggestive Group.
The minister and the doctor were riding down town in a Lexington avenue car, and had arrived at Madison square when their friend the undertaker joined them.

After riding with him two blocks the minister and doctor put the undertaker off the car, saying their appearance in trio looked too suggestive and would cause talk among their friends.

WOMEN WHO CHARM

HEALTH IS THE FIRST ESSENTIAL

It Helps Women to Win and Hold Men's Admiration, Respect and Love

Woman's greatest gift is the power to inspire admiration, respect, and love. There is a beauty in health which is more attractive to men than mere regularity of feature.

To be a successful wife, to retain the love and admiration of her husband, should be a woman's constant study. At the first indication of ill-health, painful or irregular menstruation, headache or backache, secure Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin its use.

Mrs. Chas. F. Brown, Vice-President Mothers' Club, 21 Cedar Terrace, Hot Springs, Ark., writes:

"For nine years I dragged through a miserable existence, suffering with inflammation and falling of the womb, and worn out with pain and weariness. I once noticed a statement by a woman suffering as I was, but who had been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I determined to try it. At the end of three months I was a different woman. Every one remarked about it, and my husband fell in love with me all over again. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound built up my entire system, cured the womb trouble, and I felt like a new woman. I am sure it will make every suffering woman strong, well and happy, as it has me."

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhoea, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, or nervous prostration may be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Truths that Strike Home

Your grocer is honest and—if he cares to do so—can tell you that he knows very little about the bulk coffee he sells you. How can he know, where it originally came from, how it was blended—or with what—or when roasted? If you buy your coffee loose by the pound, how can you expect purity and uniform quality?

LION COFFEE, the LEADER OF ALL PACKAGE COFFEES, is of necessity uniform in quality, strength and flavor. For OVER A QUARTER OF A CENTURY, LION COFFEE has been the standard coffee in millions of homes.

LION COFFEE is carefully packed at our factories, and until opened in your home, has no chance of being adulterated, or of coming in contact with dust, dirt, germs, or unclean hands.

In each package of LION COFFEE you get one full pound of Pure Coffee. Insist upon getting the genuine. (Lion head on every package.)

THE PULPIT.

A BRILLIANT SUNDAY SERMON BY THE REV. A. C. DIXON, D. D.

Subject: The Book of Wisdom.

New York City.—The following sermon was contributed to the Union Gospel News by the Rev. A. C. Dixon, D. D. It is entitled "The Book of Wisdom." He took for his text, "The words of Solomon, the son of David, king of Israel." Proverbs 1:1.

To preach a sermon on the whole book of Proverbs may be a difficult task, but I shall attempt it this morning in order that, if for no other reason, I may impress upon you the importance of reading the whole book at a sitting.

If we should read a part of a friend's letter and another part to-morrow, and another part the next day, we should have at the close a very confused notion of what he had written to us. The method which many have of reading the Bible by piecemeal may impart important instruction, but it does not give us the setting of the books nor a view of the Bible as a whole.

Readers of fiction think little of sitting up late at night that they may finish a thrilling story. If the lovers of books would spend the same time reading it consecutively they would find it more thrilling than any book of fiction.

To a superficial observer, reading the book of Proverbs may be like reading the dictionary. The subject changes so often. And yet there is a plan in the book which a closer study shows to be an orderly arrangement.

The first nine verses are the preface, in which we have the use of proverbs. They enable us to "know wisdom and instruction, to perceive the words of understanding, to give subtilty to the simple, to the young man knowledge and discretion." If he hears and heeds then they will be an ornament of grace unto his head and chains about his neck. Each proverb is a jewel of wisdom more precious than rubies.

From the tenth to the nineteenth verses there is described the wisdom of sin, and the young man is warned against it. "My son, if sinners entice thee, consent thou not." If they say, "Cast in thy lot among us, let us all have one purse." "Walk not thou in the way with them; refrain thy feet from their path; for their feet run evil, and make haste to shed blood."

The social element in sin is one of its most dangerous features. The habit of social drinking has made many a drunkard. The social nature carries the young man to the saloon, the young woman to the dance, and thence to destruction. Men and women go in flocks like sheep to the slaughter, and, when one tries to escape, the social nature becomes a lasso with which Satan drags his victim to the slaughter pen. It is so hard to tear away from congenial company. The social club has wrecked many a Christian for time and eternity. Watch, therefore, against the socialism of sin. When sensualists say, "Cast in thy lot among us, let us all have one purse," go the other way. Such a community of goods means a federation of death, which sooner or later will lead to destruction.

Beginning with the twentieth verse of the first chapter there is revealed to us the mission of wisdom. Many expositors believe that wisdom here refers to Christ, as He "is made wisdom for us." And He is certainly the incarnation of wisdom. But the simplest and most natural definition of wisdom, as it seems to us, is common sense. Common sense crieth without, she uttereth her voice in the street; she crieth in the chief place of concourse, in the openings of the gates. Wherever a man goes his common sense appeals to him to fear God and keep His commandments.

If he refuses he will sooner or later see his mistake, and the Common Sense that called upon him will laugh at his discomfiture. "Behold, I have called, and thou hast refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded; but ye have set at naught all my counsel, I will mock at your calamity." I do not believe that God in this passage is represented as laughing at the calamity or mocking at the fear of anyone. Our Common Sense laughs at us and mocks us when distress and anguish come upon us. We saw what we ought to have done and did it not. We appreciate opportunities lost, never to return, and in such a condition we call upon our Common Sense, but get no answer, for it has no remedy to supply. We seek the resources of wisdom, but we cannot find them, for that we hated knowledge and did not choose the fear of the Lord. "Therefore they shall eat of the fruit of their own way and be filled with devices." The mission of wisdom calling to us from every quarter, is to lead us to do right, to trust God and walk in His ways, and if we fail to hear this voice and heed His counsels there will come a time when this very wisdom will be our greatest distress.

The first eighteen verses of the third chapter establish the fact that godliness pays, even though chastisements come with it. And this chapter furnishes a motto which every Christian ought to adopt as the rule of his life: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart, and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge Him, and He shall direct thy path. Be not wise in thine own eyes; fear the Lord, and thou shalt be wise. It shall be health to thy navel, and marrow to thy bones. Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with plenty, and thy presses shall burst out with new wine."

The man whose trust is in the Lord, with entire lack of confidence in himself, God will direct, and the man who honors the Lord with the first fruits shall have an increase of wealth. This, of course, applies to the Old Testament dispensation, when wealth was the result of faithfulness. But under the reign of grace there is something better than money promised. There may come poverty and persecution, and with this true prosperity. We are not to expect pay in money for services rendered to God, but if we are faithful we can plead the promise that He will "supply all our need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus."

With this four-fold introduction as to the use of proverbs, the socialism of sin, the mission of wisdom, and the reward of godliness, we now come to a classification of the proverbs. It is not exhaustive, but I think it will be suggestive and enable us to finish the classification as we carefully read the book.

The application of the Proverbs of Solomon to the family life will make a perfect home. "He that spareth the rod hateth his son, but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." Modern sentimentalists pronounce this old-fashioned, and inveh against its cruelty, but you will notice that the homes in which disobedience has become associated with punishment, and disobedience with reward, send forth into the world the manifest sons and most womanly daughters. To refuse to administer loving chastisement to a child is to train him in a life of disobedience that will unfit him for citizenship in the State or usefulness in the church.

Let there be no anger, for anger only provokes anger. Love can administer chastisement with regret and tears, but it must not shrink from the duty. "Keep thy heart with all diligence, for out of it are the issues of life." This proverb expresses the teaching of Jesus Christ. The heart is the source of good or evil, and if the heart is right the life will be right. Let Jesus Christ fully occupy the heart, and you may be careless about everything else. Over the archway in the old Tombs prison in New York were the words: "The way of transgressors is hard," and every criminal who passed beneath it needed no argument to prove its truth.

On the walls of every store should be hung the words: "A false weight is abomination to the Lord, but a just weight is His delight." Our God gives good measure plenses Him, and we need to know that honesty in trade is as holy a thing as prayer. And when you hear anyone laughing at an oath, a vulgar remark, or a wicked deed, quietly repeat the words: "Fools make a mock at sin." The man who plays with the poisonous adder is wise compared with him who sports with sin or treats it lightly.

If you are tempted to surrender your convictions in order that you may further your interests, social or financial, recall the words: "Buy the truth and sell it not." They will give stiffness to your moral backbone and stamina to your character. No man can afford to hold the truth for sale. It is the most priceless thing that he can possess, and whatever the father of lies may offer him for it, he should scorn the price with contempt.

There are so many of these that barely to mention them would take the time of a sermon. "A merry heart doeth good like a medicine." If, therefore, you would save the doctor's bill, be merry in heart, and if you have true heart merriment, let Christ be the Lord to reign there. Link with this proverb its opposite: "He that loveth pleasure shall be a poor man." The pleasure-seeking spirit brings poverty of soul and purse. The man and woman whose sole object in life is to have a good time rarely have a merry heart. Their laughter is hollow, because their very pleasures have become a burden. "The fear of the Lord prolongeth days." If, therefore, you wish to live to a ripe old age, cultivate the fear of God, which will cast out all other fears. "He that walketh uprightly walketh surely." The position of stability is not in prostrating yourself, or crawling, or creeping after the world's fashion, but in the upright walk of a manly, conscientious life.

The man who has wandered from God needs only to hear the words: "The backslider in heart shall be filled with his own ways," to realize that they apply to him. God's way is the way of light, peace and joy. Our way is the way of darkness, turmoil and despair. The backslider who has turned from God's ways to his own ways is truly to be pitied. When our hearts seem unprepared and our tongues are not right for service, let us recall the fact that "The preparation of the heart and the answer of the tongue is from the Lord." We will then give the heart to the Lord that He may prepare it, and surrender the tongue to him that he may give it.

And then we will experience the truth of the other proverb, "Whoso trusteth in the Lord, happy is he." And in hours of conscious weakness we will repeat with triumph, "The name of the Lord is a strong tower, the righteous runneth into it and is safe."

All these proverbs make a mosaic of rare beauty. They form the parts of an oratorio, every note harmonizing with every other note, and filling the life with sweetest music. And yet we may be saved the trouble of committing them all to memory and remembering them in emergencies, if we will but realize that Jesus Christ, who is the truth, lives and is with us every day. If we need wisdom, we ask Him and He gives liberally. If we are tempted, we turn to Him for succor. If we are weak, we rely upon Him for strength, and after every conflict we can say, "Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Prayer a Mighty Power.

There are those who ridicule the idea that prayer can actually accomplish anything, because they cannot understand how prayer can either affect God's action or change in any way the current of events on earth. Such reasoning is extremely shallow. The wisest man cannot tell the why or the wherefore of some of the commonest facts of natural science; is it not childish then for any man to undertake to limit spiritual truth by the measure of his capacity to see the reason for it or the reasonableness of it? Facts are facts whether they agree with any system of logic or not. And the fact that prayer is a mighty power is attested by abundant and incontestable facts.

Watch For Opportunities.

Watch, lest those duties of kindly benevolence which God puts in the way of all be left unnoticed, unfulfilled, while each one doubts whether it can be his business to step forward and meet them. Watch, for we know not how soon our means of earthly usefulness, our opportunities for faithful service of God on earth, may end.—J. Edwin Odgers.

Be True to the Best.

There is but one failure, and that is not to be true to the best one knows.—Dean Farrar.

About Connecticut Tobacco.

The story of Sumatra leaf tobacco as grown under cheesecloth in Connecticut is one of the romantic episodes of agriculture, says a writer in Country Life in America. A Florida fruit grower had got some tobacco plants that got into his pineapple seed by accident and he noticed that they were taller and of finer texture under the lath shade. The bureau of soils, while surveying the Connecticut valley, found a soil that was practically the same as that of Sumatra, on which the famous tobacco is grown. The bureau has samples of soil from almost every important agricultural region of the world. The government got an expert to start an industry and the next two years some of the growers made over 100 per cent profit.

The industry as a whole is successful. A large company with plenty of capital is necessary, for it costs $650 to cover and grow an acre of this tobacco. The growers receive from $1.20 to $2.50 a pound for the product. The imported article brings $2.50 to $3.00 and we have been importing about $6,000,000 worth a year.

Women Physicians for Lunatics.

One of the most famous of German physicians for the treatment of mental diseases, Prof. Ludwig, is earnestly advocating the employment of women physicians in lunatic asylums. After years of investigation he has come to the conclusion that the insane are peculiarly susceptible to a woman's presence and influence, not only the women, but the men as well. He says he has been instrumental in obtaining the admission of one woman physician to an asylum for women in South Germany, and the results are simply phenomenal. The women are more tractable. Ludwig is certain that in a short time no men physicians will be employed in female lunatic asylums. His opinion is supported in large measure by another eminent authority, Dr. Krapelin.—New York World.

Look Your Jag in the Bottle.

Large locked corks, original in design, are being shown in the shops for Christmas presents. All of them have about as much silver, or nickel, as cork, but they fit in the average sized whisky bottle all right, and are really a decoration. Small Yale keys, only one for each cork, lock the bottle as tight as an office safe. If a man doesn't happen to leave his bunch of keys lying around loose his whisky is perfectly safe from purloining servants. If he loses his keys he must break the neck of the bottle to get at his tipple. No duplicate key can be made for him.

If a man prefers a certain blend of whisky, Scotch or American, he can leave it on his sideboard at home or take it to his club to be called for when required. Most club men would find this plan a great economy.

Good Explanation.

The Rev. James T. Dougherty, rector of St. Mary's church at Canandaigua, tells this story of his recent visit to the St. Louis exposition: "In one of the buildings I met a voluble Irishman in charge of an exhibition of Irish relics. My attention was especially called to the stump of a tree in which was imbedded so firmly as to be irremovable, the points of a fine set of deer antlers. I was interested. 'How do you suppose the deer had come to get his horns so firmly fastened?' I asked.

"Surely I don't know, your reverence," was the reply, "but I think he must have been 'buttin' in.'"—New York Times.

Raising Geese by Thousands.

On a goose farm in the middle west there is an incubator with a capacity for 10,000 eggs. These eggs are not, however, placed in the incubator at one time, but are so arranged that one section will hatch each day, being refilled as soon as the goslings are taken out. The geese are raised on this farm for their feathers alone, which are used in the upholstering business.

A Soap Tree.

An excellent soap, possessing no alkaline properties, is extracted in Algeria from the fruit of a tree known to botanists as Sapiindus utilis. The fruit is about the size of a horse-chestnut, and the saponaceous substance is cheaply extracted with the aid of water or alcohol. This natural soap tree grows also in India, China, and Japan.

Didn't Need Money.

Dixon—"How is your artist friend getting along in New York?" Tomson—"Oh, splendidly!" Dixon—"Have you heard from him?" Tomson—"No; that's the reason I know he's prospering."—Detroit Free Press.

Hearty Laugh Caused Injury.

Frederick L. Mordant, of Woodbridge, Conn., laughed so heartily at a joke told at a wedding anniversary that he caused a hemorrhage of the small optic veins, and his physician has little hope that his sight can be restored.

Killed Peegrine Falcon.

A rare bird in the shape of a peregrine falcon was shot recently in Fairmount, Me., by Chauncey F. Underhill. This is a species of hawk that is seldom seen in this part of the country and makes a very handsome appearance when mentioned.—Boston Globe.

READS THE BOOK.

"The Road to Wellville" Pointed the Way

Down at Hot Springs, Ark., the visitors have all sorts of complaints, but it is a subject of remark that the great majority of them have some trouble with stomach and bowels. This may be partly attributed to the heavy medicines.

Naturally, under the conditions, the question of food is very prominent.

A young man states that he had suffered for nine years from stomach and bowel trouble, had two operations which did not cure, and was at last threatened with appendicitis.

He went to Hot Springs for rheumatism and his stomach trouble got worse. One day at breakfast the waiter, knowing his condition, suggested he try Grape-Nuts and cream, which he did, and found the food agreed with him perfectly.

After the second day he began to sleep peacefully at night, different than he had for years. The perfect digestion of the food quieted his nervous system and made sleep possible.

He says: "The next morning I was astonished to find my condition of constipation had disappeared. I could not believe it true after suffering for so many years; then I took more interest in the food, read the little book 'The Road to Wellville,' and started following the simple directions.

"I have met with such results that in the last five weeks I have gained eight pounds in spite of hot baths which take away the flesh from anyone."

"A friend of mine has been entirely cured of a bad case of indigestion and stomach trouble by using Grape-Nuts Food and cream alone for breakfast."

"There is one thing in particular—I have noticed a great change in my mental condition. Formerly I could hardly remember anything, and now the mind seems unusually acute and retentive. I can memorize practically anything I desire." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

DANGERS TO BE AVOIDED IN FEBRUARY.

Intense Cold Breeds Catarrh.

Severe Weather.

February is a month of severe storms and intense cold. Even in the South where the prevailing temperature is much above wintry latitudes, February brings sudden changes of temperature.

Mercury sometimes drops 20 degrees in a single night.

Therefore the following health hints are applicable to the whole of North America:

Ventilation.

The sleeping rooms should be well ventilated, but so as to avoid direct currents of air.

Bathing.

Those in vigorous health should take a cold water towel bath every morning before breakfast. Those in feeble health should take a brisk dry-towel-rub every morning.

Diet.

The diet should be a generous one, including meat, and occasionally fresh vegetables.

Sunshine.

The nights being long and the days short, as much sunshine as possible should be let into the house during the day.

Clothing.

The head should be kept cool at all times. The feet should be kept warm and dry, day and night.

Peru-na.

When unavoidably exposed to cold or wet, a few doses of Peru-na will avert bad consequences.

Precaution.

When seized with a chill, or even slight chilliness, a dose of Peru-na should be taken at once.

Sudden Changes Breed Catarrh.

Winter Scene in the South.

As much sleep as possible should be obtained in the forepart of the night.

Catarrh of Head.

Mr. Frank Cobb, 175 Summit Street, Dering, Me., writes:

"I was troubled with catarrh in my head. I wrote to Dr. Hartman for advice and he prescribed Peru-na."

"I took it and am happy to say it helped me at once. I feel better than I have for years."

Bronchial Trouble.

Mr. J. Ed. O'Brien, Pres. American Pilot Ass'n, Pensacola, Fla., writes:

"I heartily give my endorsement to Peru-na as an effective cure for catarrh and bronchial trouble."

Throat and Lungs.

Frank Battle, Jr., 111 N. Market St., Nashville, Tenn., writes:

"Peru-na has cured me of chronic bronchitis."

"It is the grandest discovery of the age for the throat and lungs."

Pneumonia.

Mr. A. C. Danforth, St. Joseph, Mich., writes:

"I contracted a severe cold, which settled on my lungs. I was threatened with pneumonia."

"Peru-na gave me relief within a couple of days. Three bottles saved me a large doctor bill and a great deal of suffering."
